Welcome New UC CalFresh Staff!

This feature is to introduce and welcome new staff to UC CalFresh. If you have new staff, please send a brief introduction and photo to Elizabeth Egelski at eegelski@ucdavis.edu.

Kamaljeet (Kamal) Singh-Khaira, UC CalFresh Director

The UC CalFresh State Office is pleased to announce that Kamaljeet (Kamal) Singh-Khaira has accepted the position of director of the University of California CalFresh Nutrition Education Program (UC CalFresh). Singh-Khaira emerged as the top candidate in a national search for the position and will begin her new role on June 18, 2018. She will succeed David Ginsburg, who has successfully led UC CalFresh since 2008.

Singh-Khaira is currently an independent consultant and some of her clients have included the following: The Sierra Health Foundation, The California Department of Public Health, The Alameda County Office of Education, Public Health Institute, The San Francisco Foundation, The State of Hawaii, The State of Washington, and the YMCA of Honolulu. She has previously held leadership positions with the Network for a Healthy California and the American Heart Association. She has a master’s degree in community development from UC Davis and is the 2012 recipient of that program’s Ted Bradshaw Award, honoring an alum of the program who exemplifies the passion, humanity and devotion for community empowerment for which Professor Bradshaw was known. In 2015 Singh-Khaira received a U.S. Department of Agriculture Western Region Food and Nutrition Service Recognition Award honoring her professional contributions and leadership in Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) education efforts.

Management Assessment Skills Program (MSAP) mobilizes ANR people managers into professional development, UCCE Riverside County

This information was originally shared in the UC ANR blog, ANR Report—http://ucanr.edu/sites/anrstaff/anreport/

For four days, ANR supervisors Christine Davidson, EFNEP program supervisor in Riverside and San Bernardino counties; Shirley Salado, EFNEP community education supervisor in San Diego County; and Emma Sandoval, UC CalFresh program supervisor in Riverside County; shared an amazing experience at a systemwide program for UC people managers at the gorgeous retreat grounds of the UCLA Lake Arrowhead Conference Center. The goal of the Management Assessment Skills Program (MSAP) is to address skill gaps and grow competencies that will prepare employees for future leadership roles in their workplaces and within the UC system.

During the April 2018 training, Salado, Sandoval and Davidson participated in simulated UC management scenarios, received behavioral feedback from trained assessors, attended career development workshop and connected with colleagues from throughout the UC system. Before arriving at Lake Arrowhead, they participated in pre-assessment components and will be involved post-program activities to continue their professional development.

Emma emphasized the value of objective feedback: “My experience at MSAP was great; it helped me be aware of the way I supervise my team. I recommend the training because it supplied me with objective feedback about my performance from a professional, which was spot on. Since I am a new supervisor, my goal is to work on leadership with my employees. This assessment program has helped me be more self-aware and given me the tools to identify areas for improvement, so I can reach my goals.”

The next MSAP will be held October 8-11. Contact Jodi Azulai at jiazulai@ucanr.edu if you have any questions about being an assesseee or assessor.

Cook Academy Intern Shares Her Experience, UCCE Yolo County

A California State University, Sacramento intern spent two semesters with the UCCE Yolo County program, working on implementing the Cooking Academy at Southport Elementary School in West Sacramento. Below, she shares her experience working with this important project.

Recently, I had the great privilege to participate in the “Cooking Academy” project run by the UC-CalFresh Nutrition Education Program in Yolo County. I became familiar with the project as a student intern and was so impressed that I volunteered for a second round. I had a personal motivation to join due to my strong belief in facilitating a healthy lifestyle at an early age. This belief evolved partly from my experience working in a hospital setting and seeing the devastating effects of disease, and the challenge of managing it. My time working as a personal trainer solidified my understanding that health promotion efforts aimed at kids and a focus on disease prevention was a much better approach than disease management. Also, children are naturally curious and receptive to learning new things and have a great capacity for learning.

The “Cooking Academy” is successful because it was built on a fundamental understanding of these truths and uses a very effective methodology to address them. For example, while learning to follow a new recipe, the students gain the opportunity to try a healthy fruit, vegetable, whole grain, or lean protein prepared in delicious ways tailored to their sensitive palate. They also learn how to make better food choices by using conceptual tools like the MyPlate food group method. By the end of the 7-week cooking class, not only have the students developed the skills, knowledge, and confidence to cook and safely plan meals, they have the motivation to cook. These new attributes acquired in their formative years will help enable them to make better food choices in the future. This is key to achieving a healthier lifestyle in adulthood and delaying or preventing disease. I believe we owe this to our kids and strongly endorse the “Cooking Academy” project!

Center for Regional Change (CRC) Supports Youth-Led Participatory Action Research, UCCE El Dorado County

*This information was originally shared in the CRC Newsletter; see their website to sign up https://regionalchange.ucdavis.edu/

Last month, Center for Regional Change (CRC) staff-members traveled to El Dorado County for Georgetown Elementary School 6th graders’ PhotoVoice gallery walk and presentation about their new garden. The students showcased results from their yearlong youth-led participatory action research (YPAR) project. This was one of many initiatives supported by the CRC since 2016, when we began providing technical assistance to youth engagement efforts for counties across California affiliated with the University of California CalFresh Nutrition Education Program and University of California Cooperative Extension.

At the event, students used data maps from CRC's Putting Youth on the Map system and linked websites to highlight low levels of physical fitness and high concentrations of students with health risks in their school district. In addition, they shared their proposed new school garden design, showcased photos they took attached with written narratives, and presented peer survey results. Their research helped them identify the new school garden as one possible solution to address lack of access to healthy foods, limited physical activity, and poor nutrient intake. Through this experience they engaged the Georgetown community in a conversation about healthy nutrition and physical activity. Next year, the incoming 6th grade students will continue the project, building on these resources and bringing the new school garden to life. Stay tuned!

Articles & Research

Decreased Participation in Summer Meals Puts More Low-Income Children at Increased Risk of Food Insecurity

Far too many children lose access to nutritious school meals when the school year ends, according to Hunger Doesn’t Take a Vacation: Summer Nutrition Status Report, recently released by the Food Research & Action Center (FRAC). The report finds that only 3 million children received a nutritious summer lunch on an average weekday in July 2017 through the Summer Nutrition Programs compared to the 20 million children who participated in free and reduced-price school lunch during the 2016–2017 school year. Even fewer children — 1.6 million — ate breakfast at a summer meals site in July 2017. After four years of significant growth (2011–2015), last summer’s small drop of 14,000 fewer children participating in summer lunch programs further compounds the larger decrease in 2016 of 153,000, a 4.8 percent drop.

Not only do children stave off hunger as a result of summer meals, they also benefit from the activities offered at the vast majority of sites — activities that keep them engaged in educational, physical, and recreational activities, and better prepared to return to the classroom in the fall. See more information on the two reports, below.

Hunger Doesn’t Take a Vacation: Summer Nutrition Status Report: This report measures participation in Summer Nutrition Programs both in absolute numbers and by comparing the number of children receiving summer meals to the number of low-income children receiving school lunch during the regular school year. The regular school year is used as a benchmark because such a high proportion of low-income children eat school lunch on regular school days. Hunger Doesn’t Take a Vacation: Summer Breakfast Status Report: This report measures the reach of breakfast through the Summer Nutrition Programs in July 2017, nationally and in each state, and is a companion piece to the FRAC’s Hunger Doesn’t Take a Vacation: Summer Nutrition Status Report.

FNS Provides Tools to Support Safe Summer Meals

The USDA, the Center for Food Safety in Child Nutrition Programs, and the Institute of Child Nutrition, are providing the Summer Meals Food Safety Kit to site operators as an essential tool to help ensure the safety of summer meals. FNS’s Office of Food Safety created the kit to promote and support food safety practices. The resource focuses on practicing good personal hygiene, as well as checking and documenting food temperatures. It also details proper cleaning and sanitizing of equipment and utensils, while emphasizing the importance of proper handwashing. The food safety kits can be requested from your State Agency contacts. Read more here.

Healthy Meeting Resources
Members of the National Alliance for Nutrition and Activity (NANA) developed a Healthy Meeting Toolkit to provide guidance on key components of a healthy meeting and resources to help make hosting healthy meetings easier. Studies show a strong relationship between the physical and social environments of the workplace and the health behaviors of employees. By adopting healthy meeting guidelines, organizations can help to create an environment that supports employees’ and members’ efforts to eat well and be physically active. Access the resources here.

Save the Date—California SNAP-Ed Local Implementing Agency Forum, January 22-24, 2019
The California Department of Social Services (CDSS), and its state partners, the California Department of Public Health (CDPH), the California Department of Aging (CDA), the University of California, CalFresh Nutrition Education Program (UC CalFresh), and Catholic Charities of California (CCC) are excited to share news about the 2019 Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program-Education (SNAP-Ed) Local Implementing Agency (LIA) Forum.

Please mark your calendars for the 2019 LIA Forum on January 22-24, 2019 at the DoubleTree Hotel in Sacramento, California. The Forum includes a two-day, in-person meeting (January 23-24, 2019), as well as optional in-person pre-meeting workshops (January 22, 2019).

CDSS will continue sharing Forum planning details and information, including registration and lodging information once they become available. If you have any questions, please contact CalFreshsnap-ed@dss.ca.gov

Regional Physical Activity Trainings: June 21st, In-Person Training
The following information was previously shared in the 4/4/18 LHD News Bulletin.
Register for the In-Person Physical Activity (PA) Training: “Social Determinants of Health: How They Impact Choices for PA in the SNAP-Ed Population.” During the past two decades, the public health community’s attention has been drawn to the social determinants of health. The term “social determinants” often evokes issues such as health-related features of neighborhoods (e.g., walkability, recreational areas, and accessibility of healthful foods), which can influence health-related behaviors. Evidence has also accumulated pointing to socioeconomic factors such as income, wealth, and education as the fundamental causes of a wide range of health outcomes. Training participants will explore the social determinants of health, and apply the individual, environmental, and cultural health-related factors when planning and implementing SNAP-Ed physical activity programs. The last training is June 21st in Redding.

Please visit the CA SNAP-Ed Training and Events Calendar for more information and to register.

2018 Promising Practice Exchanges
The following information was previously shared in the 5/2/18 LHD News Bulletin. See the Weekly Update email for an attached agenda. The California SNAP-Ed Statewide Training (CSST) team is pleased to announce that the first of the 2018 Promising Practice Exchanges (PPEs) is scheduled for July 16th in Riverside. The PPEs are annual mini-workshops that provide an opportunity for SNAP-Ed agencies to showcase local and regional promising practices. While providing customized training and technical assistance activities, PPEs are also designed to foster local connections and develop learning communities regionally. The training and technical assistance provided will address region-specific needs as identified in the SNAP-Ed Integrated Work Plans and will allow opportunities for attendees to network with peers.

Working Together for Healthier Communities: Inland Desert Promising Practices Exchange
July 16, 2018
9am – 3pm (Registration starts at 8:30am)
Riverside University Health System – Public Health
4210 Riverwalk Parkway
Riverside, CA 92505
Register here. For More Information, Contact Maegan Jorgensen at 916-552-9951 or maegan.jorgensen@cdph.ca.gov

PPEs will be held in each service area by September 30. Registration for the exchanges in more areas will be posted on the SNAP-Ed Training and Events Calendar and the Statewide Regional Support webpage in the near future.

Training Opportunities for SNAP-Ed Local Implementing Agencies
On behalf of the California Department of Social Services, the California Department of Public Health Nutrition Education and Obesity Prevention Branch, UC CalFresh, California Department of Aging, and Catholic Charities of California, we are pleased to announce upcoming SNAP-Ed trainings available to appropriate staff from SNAP-Ed state and local implementing agencies in California. Please visit the Training and Events Calendar for additional information.
